Fn y two hundred worthy citizens of this town saved hotel expenses by sleeping on the benches in Madison Square Garden, so as to be on hand to watch the progress of to-day's contest from an early hour.

This was discovered when two urchins, one as black as Chloe, and the other a street Arab of a dozen Summers, opened in a "scrapping match " at 6 o'clock this morning.

STARTED A RING FIGHT.

In less than a minute the 200 slumbering citisens were on their feet and flying in a half wakened condition to the scene of battle. In another minute a ring was improvised, and fords of encouragement were uttered to the lads from 200 husky throats. "TIME " PREMATURELY CALLED.

Even the bluecoat from Capt. Reilly's squad, who had been on duty during the night, was aroused, and right in the midst of the third round, and just when the African was about to "do" his Caucastan autagonist the bluecoat called time and break away.

But before the minion of the law could reach the maer circle the combatants were smuggled out on the opposite side of the crowd and disappeared by way of the Madison avenue en-NOREMAC'S GOOD WORK. George Noremac, the dog-trotting little Scotchman, who never classed among the firstclass peds, but always gets a place, did the best performance of the day.

At breakfast time he had reduced this to twenty-two miles and was within two miles of CARTWRIGHT PALLING AWAY. Cartwright, though nimble and clean-limber and able to run as gracefully as a fawn, covered only 82 miles during Thursday; Pete Hegelman only 79, and Connors, whose stomach was out of order, only 57 miles.

Lepper Hughes, despite his age, his bulk and his rheumatic joints, hobbled 85 miles during yesterday, and Billie Smith, who looks as if he were fading away with consumption, made 78%

Emil Paul, who though out of the race, still runs on the track, says he is doing it for practice in future races. He ran twenty miles yesterday. Pop Elson quit the race because he was not so young as he used to be, and Dillon, Nolan, O'Mara, Taylor, Sullivan and Johnson, the colored man, still run a little to harden the mus cles and prepare them for future races. BABLY MOBNING PLODDING. The work for the first six hours of to-day of the men who will probably divide the 50 per cent. of the gate money for covering 500 miles by 10 o'clock to-morrow night is indicated by

A BIGGER	BACK CO	MINO.

Already the Garden is full of talk of future races, and nearly every pedestrian who took part in this race is booked for others to come off n the near future.

Among the most interesting, novel and most enticing of the contests already under way is what the boys call the "nine days' wonder of Coney Island. NINE DAYS THEY WILL STRUGGLE.

At the Sea Beach Palace Hotel, on June 29, fill open a nine days' race in which fifty pedestrians will take part. The arrangements are such that there will be a prize for nearly everybody in the race. At least, for anybody who has

The race will be twelve hours a day for the nine days from June 29 to July 6, beginning each day at 11 o'clock in the morning. Fifty per cent. of the receipts will be divided as prizes among the winners, after the usual schedule, statued ground in the Sunday Works.

and as the race is to come off in the very height of the Coney Island season—and there are two saturdays, two Sundays and the Fourth of July in the nine days, insuring enormous crowds-the race offers very tempting inducements to the peals.

So tempting that Gus Guerrero, the Greaser, and Frank Hart, the colored ped, are on their way from San Francisco to take part. Old Sport Campana will be there, and Dan Herty, Cartwright, Connor, Dillon, Billy Smith, Noremac, Hughes and Golden will enter.

E. C. Moore, the phenomenal Philadelphia protege of Jimmie Albert, who would certainly have broken the record of his friend last November and beaten George Littlewood but for the turning inside out of his stomach on Thursday night, when he was a leader by thirty miles, will also take a hand.

Fox offers a gold championship medal to be competed for by New York newsboys in a short race, and there will be races between postmen, telegraph boys and others.

TO BE COOLED BY A MIAGARA, A Niagara Falls of running water will keep the place delightfully cool.

The track is a good one, eight laps to the mile, and Cappa's Band will furnish the musical motion to the padestrians. Entries are made with Frank Slevin, at the Police Gazette office.

CARTWRIGHT FOUR RUNDREDTH MILE.

Cartwright passed his four hundredth mile post at 5.07 this morning, racing at a six-mile clip. Hegelman scored 400 miles at 5.55 o'clock amid much cheering, and Noremac reached the same spot at 7.10 o'clock.

To get an idea of the significance of the scores of the men at 7 o'clock this morning, when they all ate their breakfasts of chops "frenched," oatmeal, soft eggs and beef tea, taking it as they ran, consider that Herty had travelled as far as Lockport by way of the New York Central Hallway: Cartwright, Hegelman and Noremac were beyond Bochester, and Hughes had just reached the Flour City.

VISITED BY PRETTY BICYCLISTS. Louise Armaindo, Jessie Oakes, Jessie Woods, Helen Baldwin, Hattie Lewis, Lillie Williams and Lottie Stanley, even of the pretty girl bicyclists who are to race in the Garden next week, came in this morning with Manager Tom Eck. Most of them are stopping at the Ashland House.

The girls, attired in dresses of the gayest Spring hues, attracted more attention than the rather dingy-looking beds. Maggie McShane, May Allen, Lulu Hart and other girl contestants are due here to-night.

Keeper Martin J. Keese's Sentence Commuted in the Nick of Time.

The office-hungry faithful of Tammany Hall are being cared for, but their appetite is enormous and not easily satisfied. Commissioner of Public Works Gilroy is doing the best he can to feed the hungry, but is hampered much by civil-service rules in his philan-

He started out this morning by notifying Martin J. Keese, Keeper of the City Hall, and Janitor Edward Clarkson, of the County Court-House, that their official scalps were wanted. Philip V. Walsh, of the First District, was appointed in place of Mr. Keese, and John Feeney, of Alderman Divver's Second Assembly District, was assigned to that vacated by Mr. Clarkson. But here the civil-service laws stepped in to interfere with the little arrangement.

Mr. Keese is a veteran of the late war, and that fact becoming known to Commissioner Gilroy he hastened to recall both the notice of removal and the appointment of Mr. Walsh.

Under the civil-service laws an old soldier cannot be removed without cause.

Commissioner Gilroy also removed one of the messangers in his office. Thomas Holihan, and appointed John Gavigan, a member of his Twenty-third District General Committee, to the wacancy.

the vacancy.

These were the only names which went upon Deputy Commissioner Martin's little appointment book, but many others were written on the list of applicants for position, who came not only singly but in battalions to press their claims.

Mayor Grant came to his office early, but said:
"I don't know," in answer to the query whether he would or would not make any appointments he would or would not make any appointments to-day.

Ex-Assemblyman Jimmy Oliver, who would be one of the four new police justices, had an interview with His Honor, and went away with beaming countenance, but that signified nothing, as Jimmy's countenance always beams, especially on a warm day.

Chamberlain ICroker came in and held a long consultation with the Mayor, after which it was thought that the city's executive might know if he was to appoint any officials and even might know their names.

Inquiry, however, only elicited the reply that Mayor Grant was still in doubt. He has not yet received a certified copy of the Police Justices bill from Albany, and he says that he derires to know just what its provisions are before acting under it.

It was rumored at the City Hall to-day that Cornore Michael J. B. Messemer is the coming Commissioner of Charities and Correction. He is considered to have a lierupon the office on account of his long and faithful service and his off-proven strength at the polls.

> Which Declares That a Cool Wave Will Be Here To-Night.

> When the sturdy citizens of New York arose this morning they were made aware of the fact that it was warm, and they feared it would beome warmer; and as the day passed they found that they had not been mistaken.

The hot wave that sent its edge against us yesterday was right over us, and old Sol was having lots of fun in watching the bustling crowd as they mopped their faces and wished for another they mopped their faces and wished for another bliggard.

The wave travelled up here from the Southwest and is travelling castward.

It now extends from the Mississippi Valley to the Alantic Occan.

The warmest point is around Lake Erie and the territory extending on a line to the ocean.

The warm wave was hailed with delight by hundreds of trails men.

A rushing business was done by the owners of soda-water fountains, and the familiar lemonade stands sprang up like mushrooms after a shower.

The haberdashers also got in some fine work. They took down last season's stock, dusted it off and exhibited it as new importation; and many a man who had almost became parbolled went in and invested.

The thermometer at 8 o'clock registered 66 degrees. From that time on the thermometer went up rapidly, and at 11 o'clock had reached 81 degrees—a rise of 15 degrees in three hours.

Sergt. Dunn predic ed that this would be the warmest day of the season, and thought that it might reach 85 degrees before 2 o'clock.

The temperature at Cleveland. Nashville, Philadelphia, Washington, Charleston, was 76 degrees.

The outlook for to-morrow is that it will be cooler.

The re is a storm developing in Texas and snow fell last night in Colorado. The cold wave from Colorado is of considerable magnitude, and will strike us sometime during the night, according to the Signal Service indications.

An Eventro Wonld reporter who hunted up Prof. A. J. De Voc, the weather prophet of Hackensack, N. J., however, found him disagreeing with the Signal Service as well as with Prof. Wiggins's forecast of meteorological conditions for the Summer.

The Canadian weather sharp predicts a hot, dry Summer, unrefreshed by any abundant rains. Prof. De Voc says:

"There will be plenty of rain. This hot spell we are having now will last one week more, and there will be pretty heavy thunder showers on May 17 and 18. That will be the wind up of this present warm spell.

"On the 20th of this month it will be very cool, enough so to make frost quite a likelihool. A heavy, cold northwest storm will begin on May 22 and last for three days. On the 27th of this month it will clear off and be warm."

This is as far as Prof. De Voc hazards conjecture at this time, and considering the very specific character of his prognostications, it really seems a long enough look ahead to inspire confidence in his forecast.

"The point I want to make," continued the Professor. "is that Prof. Bibe, of Washington, and Prof. Draper, of New York City, recently declared that it was impossible to make more than three days scientific and reliable forecast of weather variations, and that anything beyond that was conjecture, more or less clever according to the guesser. Now I deny this.

"I declare that for a month shead weather prognogications can be made, with assurance, at any time of the year. This is due, not to observation, but workings of natural laws.

"Goday the the papers predict a thunderstorm."

Prof. De Voe says he can discount the Signal Service meteorological prospectuses.

He agrees to map out the weather for a month also convictions, and puts himself fearlessly on record against his weather rivals. IT BEAT EXPECTATIONS.

Subsequent weather developments to-day nore than fulfilled Sergt. Dunn's 85 degrees of expectation.

At 1.30 o'clock 89 degrees were registered, and it was becoming hotter every minute.

Amateur weather prophets predicted that it would reach 95 before nightfall

Watched the Sky So Eagerly? and an Heiresa.

Manager's Bride.

Judge Ehrlich Performed the Ceremony at the Hotel Belvidere.

Theatrical circles were thrown into a high state of excitement this morning by whisperings of a certain event which is said to have come off at the Hotel Belvedere.

The whisperings were at first indefinite and vague, but gradually grew stronger as the day wore on.

MANAGER AMBERG.

They were to the effect that the suave and energetic manager of the Amberg Theatre, Gustave Amberg, had captured a remarkably pretty girl and an heiress as well, and had taken her for better or worse for the rest of his life. In short, it was said that Manager Amberg had married Marie Augusta Engle yesterday after-noon at the Belvedere Hotel, where both had noon at the Belvedere Hotel, where both had been stopping.

An Evering World reporter started to investigate, and he found that the rumor was true. The marriage did take place, but it was to have been kept a secret until the happy pair were far out upon the bosem of the Atlantic. Then lips were to be unsealed.

There was some bustle behind the seenes in the Belvedere yesterday afternoon. Though few people knew it, the private dining-room was transformed into a bower of flowers.

It was just 5 o'clock when Judge Ehrlich, the clerk of his court and Joseph W. Newburger, Mr. Amberg's lawyer, entered the hotel. A bell boy was despatched upstairs and Mr. Amberg appeared.

Any one who saw his radiant, smiling face would have surmised that something was going to happen.

Then the party adjourned to the parlor on the first floor. A short wait occured and then Miss Engle, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Harriet Merrill Fairbanks, of Chicago, swept into the room. There was no time wasted and the ceremony was commenced.

First Mr. Amberg handed Judge Ebrlich a paper, which the latter scanned solemniy. It was a divorce paper, showing that Amberg had heen divorced legally from his first wife and that there was no legal impediment in the way. Then the ceremony was performed. Mrs Fairbanks gave away the bride, who was dressed in marcon silk and lace, Then everybody looked at the handsome Judge to see whether he would claim his privilege. He didn't. He was too bashful, so it is said.

The party then went to the private dining-room, where an elegant supper was prepared. An enjoyable time was had until a late hour. Before the guests left Amberg enjoined everybody present to secrecy until he should be on his way across the water on his wedding tour. Every one promised. The happy couple will leave on the Aurania to-morrow.

Miss Engle, or rather Mrs. Amberg now, is a remarkably handsome blonds of twenty-six years. It is said that she first met Mr. Amberg in Paris some years ago. She was then singing in an opera company. Through Mr. Amberg's influence she came over here and secured a place in Col. Mapleson's troups.

then singing in an opera company. Through Mr. Amberg is influence she came over here and secured a place in Col. Mapleson's troups.

She has been staying at the Belvidere for some time past and the course of their true love ranvery smoothly indeed. Mrs. Amberg is an heiress, having come into a fortune of $80,000 on the death of her mother a short time ago. Mr. Amberg is forty-three years old, and this is his second marriage. He is well known in the profession, and every one will wish him well in his second matrimonial venture. The witnesses were Harriet Merrill Fairbanks and C.S. Engle. They expect to be gone on their tonr until the latter part of July. The bride and groom received many presents, conspicuous among them being a magnificent diamond ring weighing nearly seven carats from Mrs. Fairbanks.

He testified that Goodrich had offered to get him on the force for $50; that he paid him the $50 in December last.

Goodrich afterwards, as he alleged, told him that his name was thirteenth on the list, from which six patrolmen were to be appointed, and he wanted $50 more to get him made one of the six. Woolf paid $50 more but never heard anything more of his appointment.

Goodrich was arrested at his home in Flushing, L. I., vesterday. He demanded an examination, and his counsel claims to be able to show that his arrest is a persecution.

Col. Goodrich was held in $500 bail for his appearance in court to-morrow.

> "Black Silk Slippers, Embroidered with Gold," the Police Clue.

The body of an elderly, gray-baired, neatly dressed man was found in the North River this morning and the question of his identity is puz-He has been recognized as an old gentleman who strolled down to the dock at the foot of West Twenty-fourth street late yesterday after-noon, and who aroused comment alike by his actions and his attire.

He wore slippers instead of shoes, and they vere of black silk embroidered with gold. He was a pleasant old man, and as he sat down on the dock and with rapt gaze watched the shipping pass half a dozen persons followed him

The grav-haired old man watched the sun set. It sank in the west as a blood-red disk in the sky. Darkness came and the river grew dim and black.

The old man lingered in the night, and some one went to him and spoke to him.

He maintained a dignified silence, however, and paid no attention to what was said to him, and the questioner went away.

That was the last seen of him alive.

In the gray dawn, at 5 o'clock this morning, a policeman patrolling the North Biver front saw some object floating in the water near the West Twenty-fourth street dock. He shought at first that it was nothing more than a piece of floating wood.

He stopped and watched it closely, and saw a white face above the wave. In a few moments he had a boat and rowed out to the floating figure.

No card, or letter, or scrap of paper was found in his pockets to indicate who he was. If he had contemplated suicide he had taken all means to conceal his identity.

The news of the discovery of the drowned man was at once sent to the Sixteenth Precinct Police Station in West Twentieth street.

The police memorandum read like this:

height, gray hair and chin whiskers, gray seek coat, gray tronsers, red stockings and embredered slippers.

A reporter of The Evening World went to the dock this forencon to see if the drowned man's identity had been discovered. Two police officers were on duty there. One lifted the handkerchief from the dead man's face.

'I have seen that man's face before, "said the reporter, and the reporter mentioned a well-known name.

'I know the man you mean, "said the policeman," I noticed two hours ago that he looked wonderfully like him. But that man is baid and this man is not. Otherwise he looks enough like him to be his double.

'Many people have called to see him, but none know him. One man called, looked at the body and said he was sure it was that of an old man who had lived in West I wenty-sixth street.'

A reporter called at the number given. Only one old man lived there, and he was cheerily playing pinochle in the top story.

HAUNTED TO DEATH

Morris Bernstein Driven to Suicide by a Strange Mania.

He Thought a Relentless Foe Was in Pursuit to Kill Him.

He Said His Prayers, Eluded His Watchful Wife and Shot Himself.

Morris Bernstein, a pedler, living at 52 Forsyth street, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself in the mouth. He died in a few minutes after the act without having uttered a word. According to the story told by his wife and the neighbors, Bernstein was haunted with the idea that a fee was pursuing him relentlessly and would kill him at sight. This belief was so strong that he said several times that if he would kill him at sight. This belief was so strong that he said several times that if he came face to face with his pursuer he would kill himself rather than be murdered.

His elchness dates back from the time of the great biliszard on March 12, 1388. Bernstein was a peddler, and during the storm he contracted a severe cold. He neglected it intil several mouths later, when he became alarmed ever his condition and went to consuit Dr. E.J. Messemer, a brother of the well-known Coroner. He started for the doctor's about 6 o'clock one evening and returned shortly after 10 o'clock in an excited state of mind, telling a wild story about his visit.

He said that he servived just as the doctor was leaving to visit his patients, and he was kept sitting in the dark for four hours until he made his excape. He thought somebody was going to kill him, but he got out before being assaulted.

From that time he was troubled with the monomania that his persecutor was still on his track. He stayed in the house for days, refusing to go, because, he said, a man wanted to murder him.

This mants grew stronger, and about aix months ago he stopped work entirely, because he was afraid that he might go into the house where his fancied enemy lived.

He sat up until nearly 1 o'clock this morning and then retired. A few friends had called during the evening and he carried on a pleasant conversation with them.

After they had gone, however, his old thoughts came upon him and he lay awake the greater part of the night. He tossed about on the bed and Mrs. Bernstein sat up and watched him, fearing the night the tossed about on the bed and Mrs. Bernstein sat up and watched him, fearing the night that the morning she was able and he sat up and watched him, fearing the night that the morning she was avakened by heavened by heavened him cover a round the same his prayers.

Mrs. Bernstein went out, and returned with a pitcher of milk, and as she was opening the door the report of a pistol shot from the direction of the front room startled her.

She ran in and found her husband lying upon the floor, with blood ooxing from his mouth and his eyes fast assuming a plassy look.

A policeman came in and stood by while the unhappy woman threw water on the sticide's head and tried to bring him to. She spoke to him and he made a slight movement of the lips, but no sound escaped.

He died in a few minutes.

The pistol was an old-style seven-shot revolver of 32-calibre, and all chambers were loaded.

Bernstein was forty-one years old. He came to this country seventeen years ago and was married a year later. They have no children.

Bernstein was a member of the American Legion
